The above are some of the better securities attorneys used currently by our public company clients. No other association is implied or intended. In addition to our affiliation with certain attorneys, we also work with a number of firms who specialize in outsource controllerships and CFO services.

“Our firm shares several clients with Malone & Bailey and we actively refer business to them when appropriate. We are more comfortable with an auditing firm that understands the legal rules that define SEC accounting disclosures and the accounting implications of legal disclosures. There are very few out there. It is rare to find a firm as competent and efficient in SEC audits as they have been with the clients we share.”
